PARTITION REVISITED

THE PARTITION OF INDIA
The Partition of India was a significant event in the history of the Indian subcontinent, leading to the creation of two independent nations, India and Pakistan, on August 15, 1947. The process was marked by widespread communal violence and the displacement of millions of people. The partition was a result of the long-standing demand for a separate Muslim state, which was eventually granted by the British government. The legacy of the partition continues to shape the political and social landscape of the region.
